Frequently Asked Questions

My kid doesn't know how to read yet. Can he/she still participate?

Yes! Children benefit from reading the day they are born. Reading with your child and participating in other early literacy activities (outlined in the early reader journal) count for summer reading.

I haven't signed up for Summer Reading. Can I still come to the events?

Yes! All Summer Reading events are FREE for everyone; you don't even need a library card! We do encourage you to register and get your FREE book just for signing up!

What are Secret Stories?

These books are hidden around Creswell, first by the library and then by whoever found them. Just like the painted rocks you see around town! Find a book, read it, then hide it somewhere else.

How long do programs and events last?

We aim for 60 minute programs, but sometimes they run longer.

How are prizes awarded?

Every time you turn in a completed journal at the library, you will receive one library dollar. These can be spent on cool prizes that will be displayed in the library. Think of it as turning in tickets at an arcade!

Can teens participate?

Of course! Teens can track their reading hours and earn library dollars just like everyone else. We also encourage teens to volunteer at our weekly events!

Once you are registered, you can scan the reading journals code and log your child's reading hours or early literacy activities. Logging reading journals earns library dollars that can be spent on prizes just like an arcade!
