

Early Reader's Journal

There are five key activities that help develop early literacy skills. Simply put, these are Talk, Sing, Read, Write, and Play.

Complete ten activities, then turn in this journal at the library. You can earn prizes by turning in your completed journals! Every completed journal earns you one Library Dollar to spend on prizes. Each image represents one activity; color them in to keep track!

Here are some examples of activities.

Read a book together.

Draw a picture or color.

Sing a song or do a fingerplay.

Practice the alphabet.

Play I spy with letters, colors, shapes, or numbers.

Play at the park together.

Attend Storytime!

Practice spelling your child's name together.

Build a structure out of blocks.

Go for a walk together.

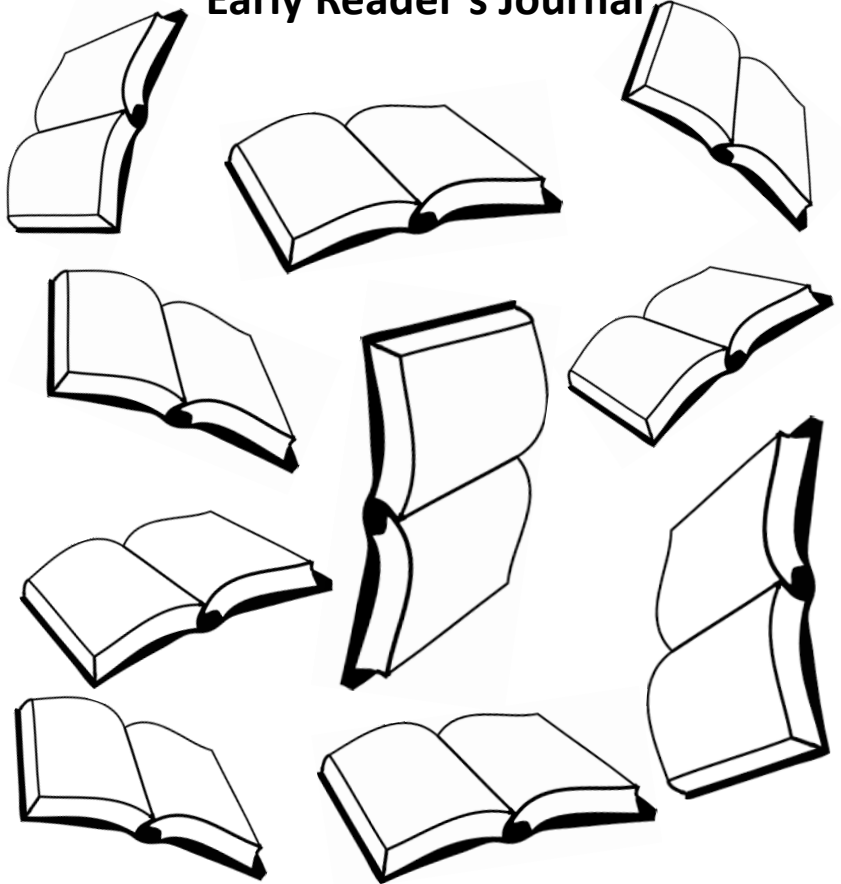

Play pretend with stuffed animals.

Child's Name: _____

Phone: _____

Guardian's Signature: _____

Early Reader's Journal

Early Reader's Journal

There are five key activities that help develop early literacy skills. Simply put, these are Talk, Sing, Read, Write, and Play.

Complete ten activities, then turn in this journal at the library. You can earn prizes by turning in your completed journals! Every completed journal earns you one Library Dollar to spend on prizes. Each image represents one activity; color them in to keep track!

Here are some examples of activities.

Read a book together.

Draw a picture or color.

Sing a song or do a fingerplay.

Practice the alphabet.

Play I spy with letters, colors, shapes, or numbers.

Play at the park together.

Attend Storytime!

Practice spelling your child's name together.

Build a structure out of blocks.

Go for a walk together.

Play pretend with stuffed animals.

Child's Name: _____

Phone: _____

Guardian's Signature: _____

Early Reader's Journal

